BRAD DELAPIERRE PLANNING MANAGER

Brad Delapierre brings 20 years of local government experience to Think Planners.

Brad left Melbourne in 1995 and commenced his planning career as a planner at Baulkham Hills Shire Council. Brad progressed to becoming a team leader of the Central Area of the Baulkham Hills Shire Council responsible for assessing development applications in the Norwest Business Park as well as the Castle Hill and Baulkham Hills Town Centres.

In 2003 he joined Parramatta City Council as a Team Leader of the Major Projects Team and had oversight of up to ten planners and associated technical specialists, involved in assessing a wide range of development applications from large commercial buildings in the CBD, industrial buildings in the Camellia precinct, shop top housing developments, medium density to dual occupancy developments. Brad's role included the liaison role with the Sydney West Joint Regional Planning Panel.

Brad joined Think Planners in 2015 and has been responsible for both project managing a wide range of development applications and preparing complex Statement of Environmental Effects as well as representing clients at IHAP, JRPP and Council meetings.

Having worked in both a rural release area Council and Sydney's Second CBD, Brad understands a wide range of development applications from rural residential developments, release area subdivisions, educational establishments, child care centres, boarding houses, Seniors Living developments, residential, places of worship, commercial, and industrial.

In relation to Education Projects, Brad was the point contact for the Building Education Revolution that occurred in 2008 and has been responsible for liaising with the Department of Education, and oversight of numerous development applications for both public and private educational establishments throughout Western Sydney.

Brad's approach centres on building collaborative relationships with stakeholders, including Council staff and clients to deliver projects that meet their expectations in a timely manner.
